

NOW YA KNOW

Issue 25, July 2024

Architects in Action 2024

July 17th & 18th (Virtual)

Learn about recruiting, inspiring, and training advocates! Open to all AIA members who are interested in advocacy training and policy issues impacting architects at the state or local level.

Register Here

CONNECT + CHILL^{Q3}

Cocktails, Mocktails, + Movies!

Featured Beverage:
"New Horizon"

Releases

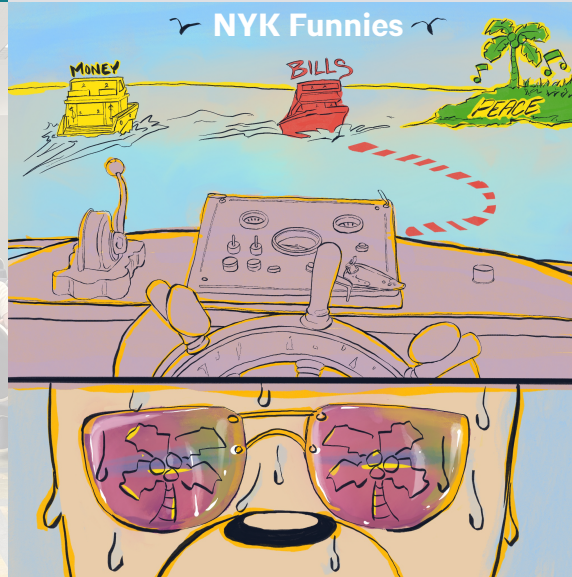

July 17th

YAF at AIA24 Spotlight: Practice Simulation Lab

Committee members Seth Duke and Alex Oetzel led attendees through various scenarios of running a firm, allowing attendees to test business decisions in a realistic, low risk environment.

Session based on the YAF Practice Innovation Lab (PIL) Toolkit.

Download it here

Next to Lead: 2024 Applications Open!

Next to Lead is a 10 month leadership program for racially and ethnically diverse women in the AIA that removes barriers to AIA volunteer leadership positions.

Deadline: Aug 13th, 2024

For application requirements and details, click here

Five Key Takaways from Dr. Sanjay Gupta's Keynote at AIA24

Miss the National Conference? Gain invaluable insights on the intersections of Design & Health, and learn how you can incorporate these takeaways into your practice.

Learn more here

Economic Update: Q3 2024 ABI Insights

Join AIA Chief Economist Kermit Baker, Hon. AIA, and AIA President Kimberly Dowdell, AIA, NOMA, for our quarterly conversation about the ABI.

The Architecture Billings Index (ABI) is a leading monthly economic indicator that uses proprietary AIA data to predict nonresidential construction activity 9-12 months ahead.

Register Here

AIA Delaware Fun Fact: "The Small Wonder"

Measuring 95 miles long and between 9-35 miles wide, Delaware is the 2nd smallest US state, with a land area of 1,948 square miles.

Small as it is, Delaware has more shoreline than the U.S. Virgin Islands and Guam combined!

DECEMBER 7, 1787

Young Architects Forum

 Member group

You got a story to tell?
Want to get subscribed?

Write us at:
yafknowledge@gmail.com